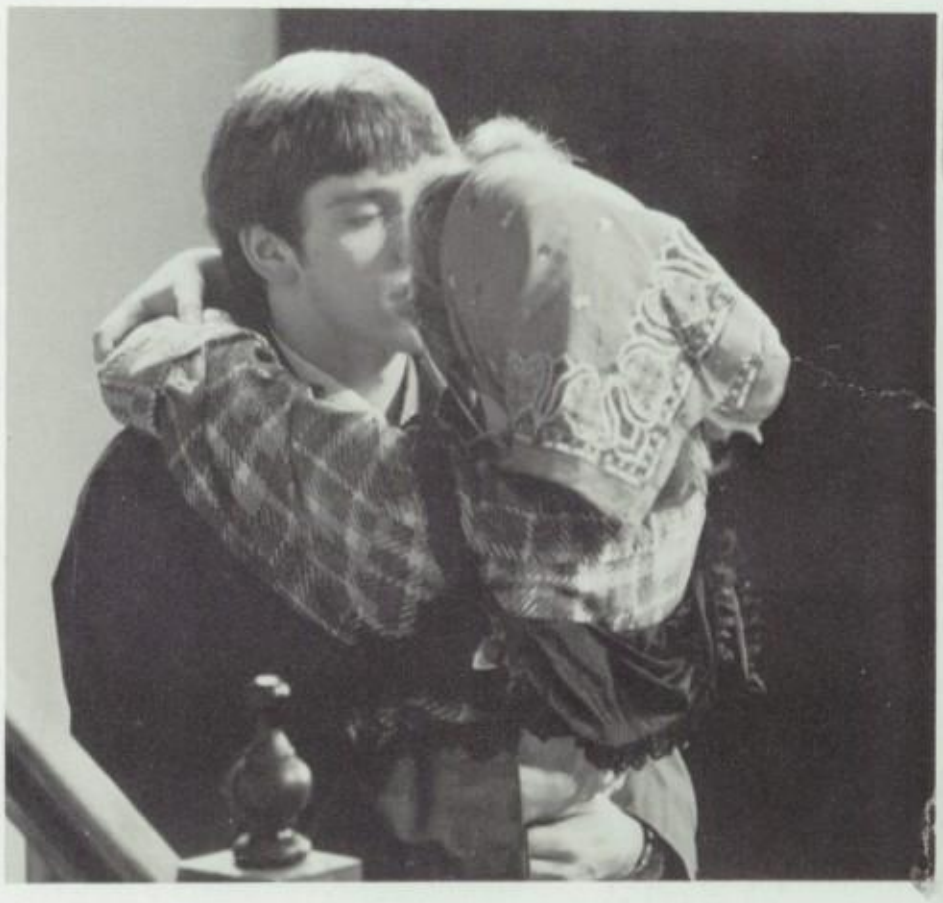
"Barefoot In The Park" Is First Production

The brownstone section of East 48th Street in New York City is the setting for Neil Simon's comedy "Barefoot in the Park." Paul and Corie Bratter are newly-weds who are setting up housekeeping for the first time. While Paul, an enterprising young lawyer, is working on his first case, Corie his pretty but spoiled wife leases a new high-rent apartment because of its charming character. Unfortunately to reach the apartment it is necessary to climb six grueling flights of stairs. In an attempt to spruce up the small, drab furnitureless apartment before her husband sees it, Corie hastily tries to brighten the premises with a new coat of paint. To the dismay of the couple, they discover the skylight leaks, there isn't room for a double bed, and an outlandish gourmet, Victor Velasco, lives in the loft above them and uses the window ledge as an entrance to his padlocked quarters. After dining out at an exclusive restaurant, Paul refuses to accompany his wife, who had had a little to much to drink, on a barefoot stroll through the snow in the park. Corie kicks Paul out of the apartment, but eventually he returns and they work out their differences.



Corie welcomes Paul to their new apartment with a warm embrace.

Thespians Present "The Runner Stumbles"

For its winter dramatic production, the Mount Gilead High School Thespian Troupe selected "The Runner Stumbles." The play was presented in the high school lecture room on February 15-17, 1980. As the play opens we learn that a young nun has died under mysterious circumstances in a remote parish of northern Michigan, and that her superior, Father Rivard, has been charged with her murder. The action alternated between interrogation and the teastimony and scenes of past events. These events reveal that Father Rivard, after a falling-out with his bishop, had been banished to the small country parish under the pretext of needing an isolated surrounding to complete a theological paper which he had been instructed to write. When Sister Rita arrives to help in the parish school, Father Rivard is distressed to discover a sensual element in his reaction to her. Their relationship, inevitably, foreshadows tragedy, but it is not until the explosive and surprising climax of the play that the full extent of their sacrifice is made clear, and the identity of the murderer is revealed.

Indians Are In District Tournament Action

The 1979-80 Varsity Boys' Basketball Team fought hard for a 3rd place tie in the always rough Mid Ohio Conference during regular season play. The Indians, whose hard schedule paid dividends in post season tournament play, were seeded 4th in the Central District Class A Sectional. The varsity responded with outstanding play at the end of the season by winning Mount Gilead High School's first sectional championship in fifteen years. Then an Indian rally led by Neal Dumbaugh came within striking distance of an upset in the last minute of play. The Indian rally just fell short as 6'4" Dumbaugh played the best game of his career scoring a game high 27 points against the taller Canal Winchester team. For his effort, Neal was selected: Honorable Mention in the Associated Press Class A All- State, to the Ohio Coaches Association All-District II team, ALL-MOC, to the Columbus Dispatch All Central District team, and to the South All-Star team for the Mansfield News Journal North/South Game.
